

DELIGHTFUL EVENING

For Royal Arch Masons, Their Wives And Ladies

In The Nature Of Hallowe'en Dance And Social

Many Novel Attractions All Over The Temple

Created Much Amusement During The Evening

A Class Of 20 Received Degrees Prior To The Social

The Hallowe'en social and dance given by Clinton Chapter No. 26, Royal Arch Masons, at the Masonic temple Tuesday evening, attracted a crowd numbering 300 and all entered into the free and informal spirit of the affair to such an extent that it proved so gay and festive that the bulk of the crowd remained until midnight.

At 6 o'clock, a class of 20 candidates, representing various sections of the county, was introduced and received the degree of Past Master, with J. W. William B. Morris presiding. Following this, the spectacular degree of Most Excellent Master was conferred on the same class, M. E. M. Charles E. Ayers presiding.

By this time, the ladies of Royal Arch Masons and members of the class had commenced to arrive and an adjournment was taken to the reception rooms of the temple, where introductions were made.

At 8 o'clock, the large crowd surged upstairs where a musical program was rendered by Sharr's orchestra of Columbus and a singer. A procession was then formed, headed by Mortimer E. Lytle and daughter, Miss Gertrude Mae Lytle, and a grand march was performed in the ball room of the temple. At the ending of this march it was brought about that every man in line clasped hands with every lady, thus promoting an easy atmosphere at the outset.

This served as a good "opener" for the main program of the evening which was given in the lodge room and started with a protean exhibition by Jay B. Clutter, entitled "Hats is Hate" in which he impersonated a number of characters and ended with a number of local hits. He was followed by Thomas L. Bogardus, who told his "tiger" story in inimitable fashion.

By this time a number of trick booths, distributed throughout the third, fourth and fifth floors, were ready for operation and many victims succumbed to the snares set for them. A feature of this portion of the entertainment was a "movie" show in one of the rooms on the fourth floor which had all of the regalia of the regular moving picture house and in which entertainment was provided by Edward L. Parker, Otto S. Baker and Walter S. Anderson, assisted by an operator, an organist, a ticket-taker and an usher. The show proved one of the decided hits of the evening.

When all had amused themselves with the various devices calculated to while away odd moments, the dance started. This occurred in the ball room which was very attractively decorated for the occasion by Leonard E. Rawlinson. The color scheme of gold and black was worked up by interlacing streamers of these tones, forming numerous squares. In the center of these squares were suspended little papier-mache figures, appropriate to the occasion. All lights were covered over with yellow crepe paper decorated with witches, hobgoblins and the like, and softened the illumination down to distinctly Hallowe'en tone. On the side walls appeared a number of false-faces, surrounded by tightened streamers.

After the fifth dance, favors in the shape of Hallowe'en hats in a multitude of colors and designs, were passed around and from then on to the end of the evening, the room was a riot of swiftly-changing colors. This one little touch added much to the success of the dance.

The dance program consisted largely of waltzes and two-steps, very few of the dances which have been in vogue for the past few years being used.

The refreshments for the affair, served in the temple dining room in buffet style, consisted of doughnuts, cider, pumpkin pie and coffee.

The music was excellent, the crowd joyful, the scene beautiful and all departed for their homes with the feeling that an extremely pleasant evening had been spent.

HAD CONSENT

Of Papa And Mamma But Decided To Elope, Anyhow

(Akron Times.) Parents of Maud Winter were surprised to learn at midnight Saturday that their daughter who, they supposed, had gone on a visit to Mt. Vernon, had taken that opportunity of a few days away from home to carry out a plan which, they decided, had been in the making for some time, to meet her sweetheart, Oscar Kramer, and get married. Cincinnati was the place chosen.

The couple had been engaged for about two years, said George F. Winter, father of the girl.

"We are surprised at the elopement," he said, "and cannot understand since we had already given our consent to their marriage."

Mrs. Ida Winter, the mother of the girl, was not so ready to believe the news as was the rest of the family, including Forest Winter, Maud's brother, and a player on the South High football team. Mrs. Winter at once proceeded to don her street clothes and start for the nearest long distance phone and call Cincinnati to find out all particulars for herself.

At an early hour Sunday she had not located the party who had tied the knot or the couple. She expected the new Mrs. Kramer home Monday.

Mrs. Kramer has been employed at the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company in the bicycle tire department, Factory 6. Mr. Kramer is employed in the shipping department of the same firm. Before entering the employ of the Goodyear he made his home in Mt. Vernon, from whose high school he was graduated two years ago. Kramer and his bride are each 23 years of age.
